

RESIDENTIAL PROGRAMS

Secluded, Focused Care

Fairbanks' extended residential treatment program is a gender-specific offering for men and women who are working to overcome addiction and have complex recovery issues that require extended treatment. Long-term residential treatment takes place at La Verna Lodge for Women and La Verna Lodge for Men, gender-specific locations with specialty programming in a distinct, peaceful and private setting.

Women's Long-Term Residential at La Verna Lodge

Because women recover from substance use disorder differently than men, both biologically and psychologically, it's important that they receive specialized care. This long-term residential program caters to the unique needs of women working to live in recovery and provides an environment where each woman can focus on her recovery in a safe, therapeutic and confidential setting.

Men's Long-Term Residential at La Verna Lodge

The long-term residential treatment program is for men who are confronting substance-use disorder and have complex recovery issues that require extended treatment. La Verna Lodge provides a confidential, secluded environment where men can receive the treatment they need from a proven recovery program that will have lasting effects on them and their families.
